Stepping out of Mr. B's room, Pat Rutledge is all smiles in her knickers and leg warmers.

The expectant pumpkin is actually Beverly Johnson, and we are betting this fashion idea won't catch on.

Izod is a name Michelle Catoe can trust, but Ann Taylor likes the newer sailor look.

Adoptable Dolls of all kinds became very popular among old and young alike.

Willie Nelson is obviously a favorite of Page Thompson as she displays her custom made doll.

Video games had a great fascination for students. Deborah McFadden and Wesley McCaskill spent a lot of quarters and free time at the Cassatt aracde.

Is that our editor Glenda Cassady at the Astro Blaster? How does she find time when she has pages due?

Balloons and ballgames are always a favorite. So were down jackets and vests.

Pac Man Fever

At our school trends play a big role. Some of the popular trends include video games such as Pac-Man, Space Envaders, Astro Blaster, and Robotron. Add-a-beads and gold chains of all lengths were worn around most girls necks. Mini skirts were brought back from the late sixties and the sailor look made an appearance during the summer. Headbands, knickers, and ruffled blouses were also a big part of this years fashions. Izod and Saddlebred shirts worn with Calvin Klein, Jordache or Levi jeans were still in style. Those adorable adoptable dolls and Garfield with his witty "pussonality" were very popular. Each student had his own style which reflected his personality, making each year unique in its own way.

Spirit runs high.

Dismissed from the pep rally, the stampeed is on.

Nine cheerleaders and eight hundred students made pep rallies the highlight of many days.

The spirit stick competition was a new aspect brought back by the cheerleaders from the Columbia College summer camp. Secrecy played a big part in the fierce rivalry of the different grades, which made pep rallies especially exciting. Each grade had a chance to show their school spirit with the winner receiving the spirit stick as a trophy. Class games also brought about much laughter and friendly competition.

Wood shots were one of the high points in Russell King's game.

With all of those golf balls, Freddie Ogburn and Keith Fletcher should hit one straight.

The stroke

The North Central Golf team coached by Robert Roberts, completed it's second year in the Spring of 1982. Although the season was not what Coach Roberts had hoped for, the team was relatively successful. They managed to come in fourth in the conference. This was done with the help of Russell King, an experienced Junior, who had a low score of 87 in tournament play. Other teams trying for positions were Great Falls, Buford and Andrew Jackson.

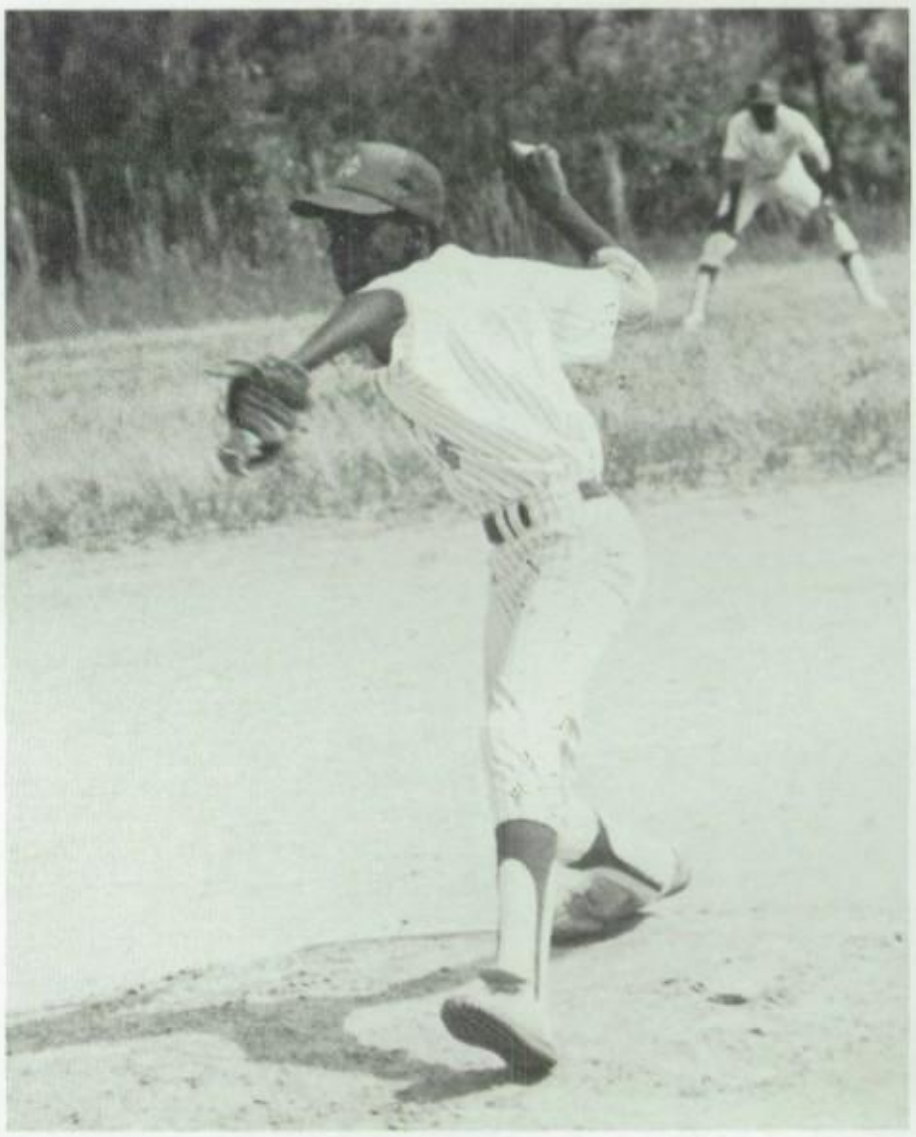
AN EVEN DRAW

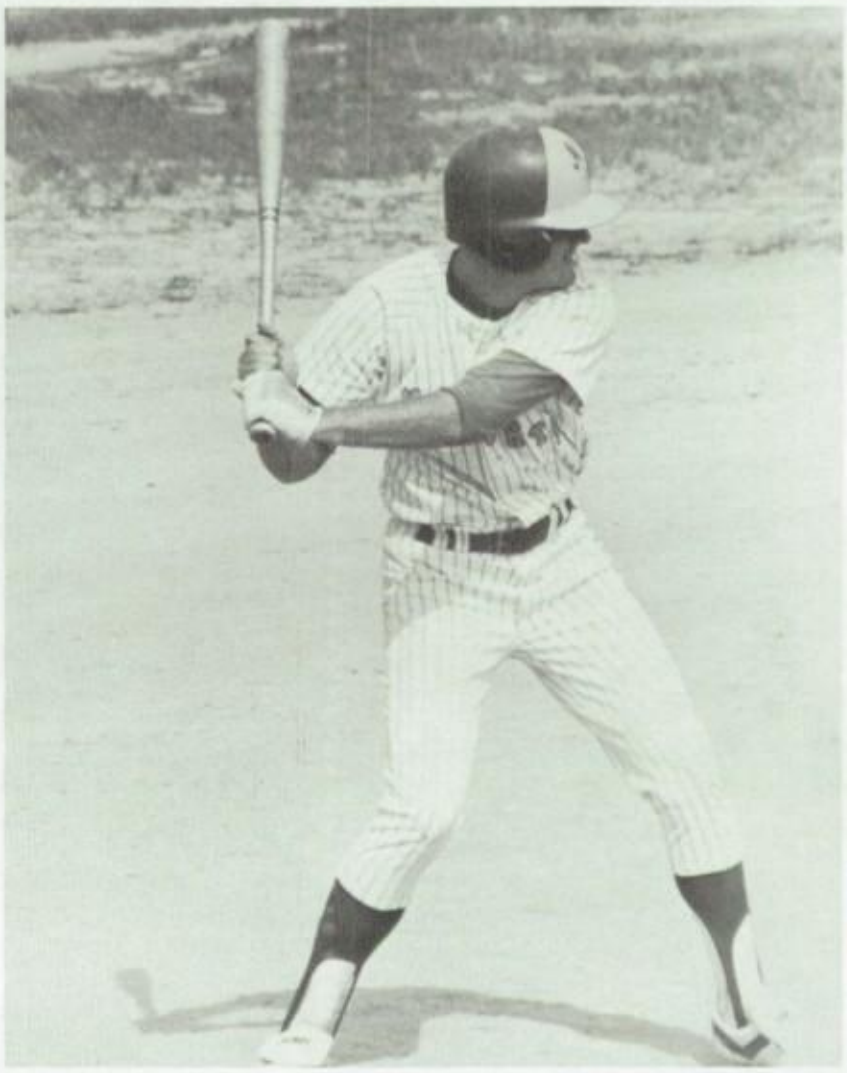
The 1982 baseball team was a gift to North Central. The team's coach, Mr. Jeff Tate, was pleased with the player's conduct, their attitude, and their mutual support. The overall record for the baseball team was an even draw with six wins and six losses. The players put in long hours of practice and a lot of hard work and should be congratulated for their effort.

Jason Jefferson, pitcher, contributed the best of his ability and was chosen most valuable player.

Coach Tate is hoping that the 1983 team will be just as accomplished as the 1982 team was.



HIT AND RUN



The umpire calls strike two as Jason Jefferson prepares for strike three.

Waiting for the pitch, Eddie Taylor hopes to better his batting average of 360.

The team huddles up before the game for a little pep talk.

Coming home, Todd Jordan is overwhelmed with joy.

Coach Tate has a difference of opinion with the umpire as team members look on.

Ready for the pitch, James Furman keeps his eye on the ball.

Daydream Believer Homecoming Queen

Homecoming at North Central is celebrated the entire week preceding the big night. The students display spirit and enthusiasm as the suspense grows each day. Who will be our 1982 Queen? The first half ended with the Knights leading Great Falls 12-6. N.C.'s 1982 Homecoming Queen was Lisa Peach crowned by Mr. Aaron Hough, Principal, during half-time. Lisa was escorted by Larry Kelly and sponsored by Billy Kelly. The end of the ballgame brought the end of Homecoming '82, with the final score; Great Falls 14, North Central 12.

1st Runner Up - Elaine Jackson was sponsored by Ervin Jefferson. 2nd Runner Up - Donna Duren was sponsored by Marvin Lee. Lined up are the contestants with their escorts: Shirley Drakeford, Raymond Furman, Donna Duren, Michael Anthony, Elaine Jackson, Jason Jefferson, Lisa Peach, Larry Kelly, Virginia Stokes, and Felix Stokes. Virginia Stokes was sponsored by Russell Brown and Shirley Drakeford was sponsored by Earl Barnes.

Homecoming week was a little something different everyday. Monday - Hillybilly Day, Tuesday - Punk Day, Wednesday - Favorite Holiday Day, Thursday - Fifties Day, and of course Friday was Green & Gold Day.

AIR SHOWS

This year the Knights had a very productive season. Known as the "MEAN GREEN" North Central awed it's fans with their passing ability. Led by sophomore quarterback Stephen Kahler, the Knights were noted for their "AIR SHOWS." One of the Knights best games was against Fort Mill, in which Kahler threw 4 touchdown passes to various receivers in a 35 to 27 win. Another game the Knights were outstanding in, was the Andrew Jackson game. In this game the Knights showed off their great defense. This year the Knights had 5 seniors in their line-up; Billy Kelly, Marvin Lee, Earl Barnes, Ervin Jefferson, and Russell Brown. Also this team had a great coaching staff which included head coach Bill Few and assistant coaches Jeff Tate, Stephen Kahler Sr., and Henry Baggett Jr. With this fine coaching staff and this fine line-up, the "MEAN GREEN" have fans looking forward to next years season.

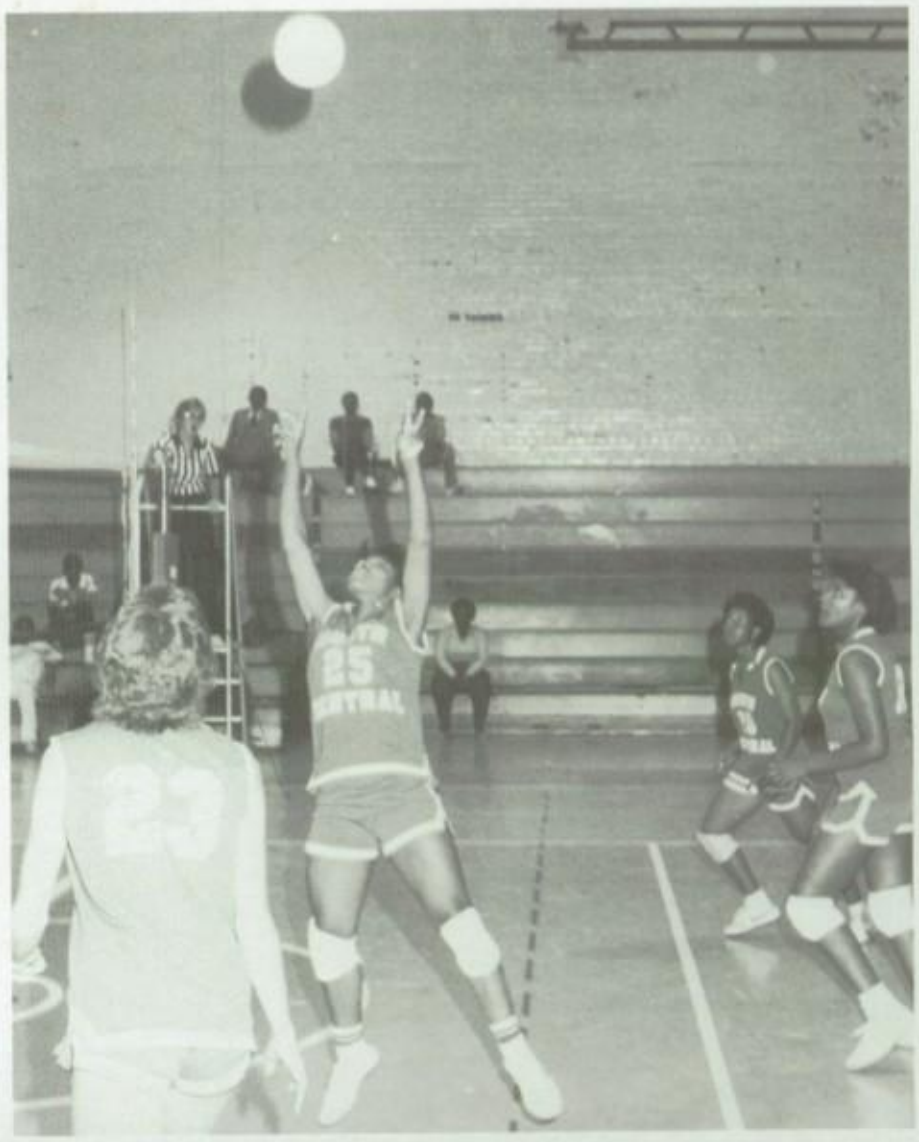
Lady Knights make it to Upper-State



With only five veterans returning to the 1982 volleyball team most people were not too hopeful about the Lady Knights season.

The team had disadvantages in numbers, players coming out late, injuries, and sickness. Some of these factors caused the Knights to change their defense in the middle of the season. The Lady Knights put complete devotion into practice, to achieve the high goals which they had set for themselves. Two of their goals were to make it to the play-offs in the Conference Tournament, and to make it to Upper-State Tournament.

Coach Barbara Wilkes was very proud of The Lady Knights who placed second in the AA Conference. The Knights received an at-large bid to the Upper-State Championship. The tournament was held at Ninety-Six High School with eight teams participating, in which the Lady Knights placed fourth. It turned out to be a very exciting year for our volleyball team.

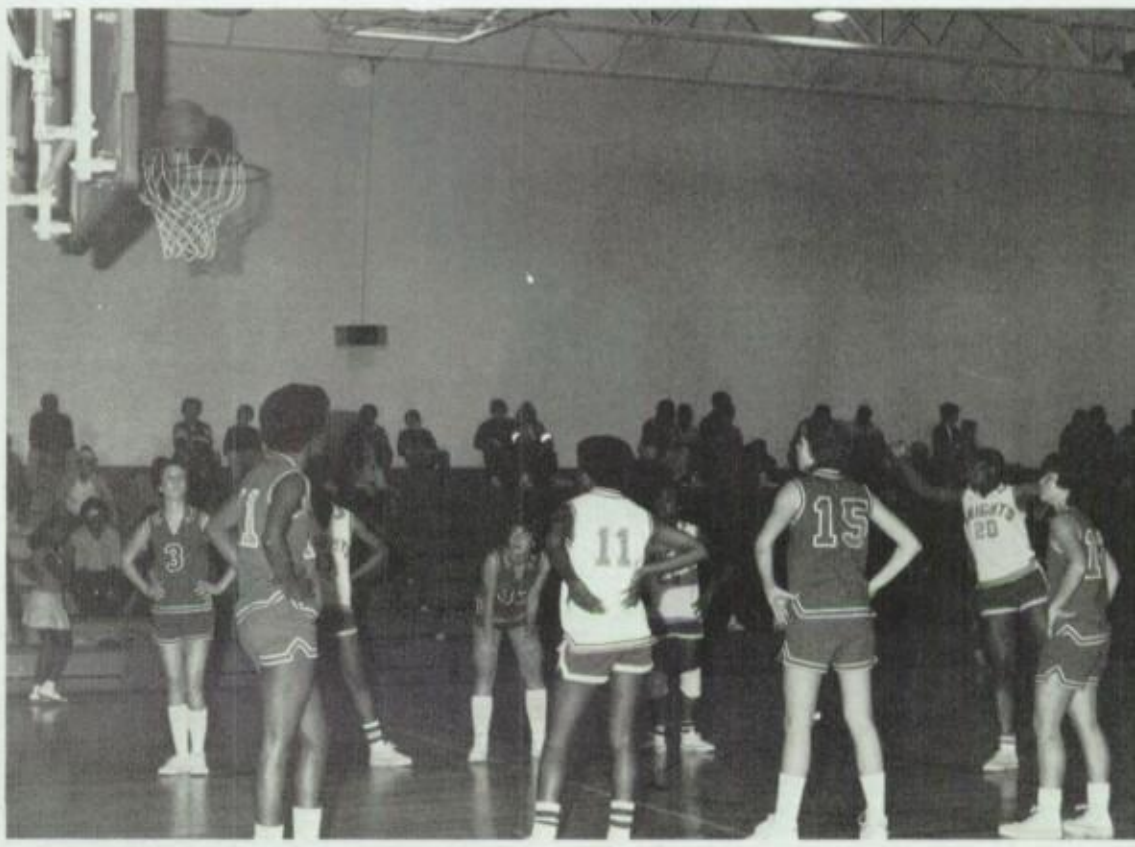
Give up Mr. Baggett, you're surrounded!



The N.C. Varsity Lady Knights '82-'83 season was a striking success. Under the able coaching of Henry Baggett Jr., the team had a strong supporter. This was Coach Baggett's first year as head coach for The Lady Knights.

They were a confident team and ambition ran high for the five seniors, four juniors and two sophomores. Only six of the eleven team members had previous experience. The girls put in long hard hours of practice in order to reach their goal.

Up in the air for two is Dwayne Drakeford.

Seniors Russell Brown and Earl Barnes led the Knights in scoring this season. They averaged twelve points in every game. Amazingly enough, this year was Earl's first experience on an organized team.

Another key for the Knights in addition to the scoring of Brown & Barnes was the teams defensive prowess. The team consisted of four seniors, three juniors, and five sophomores. Four of the sophomores and two of the Seniors were involved in 90% of the play. Coach Hinson is planning on having a good year next year and an exceptional one the following year.

Fans get involved

Varsity Cheerleaders have enjoyed a very successful year. During July the girls, accompanied by their sponsor - Mrs. Linda Hall, attended N.C.A. Camp at Columbia College. This was a most enjoyable and rewarding experience which taught the girls a lot of new cheers, chants, mounts, and routines. Emphasis was placed on spirit projection and fan involvement. The squad was rewarded for their hard work by bringing home three first place ribbons and a spirit stick. "From what I have seen thus far this year, this squad is one of the best in the conference," says Mrs. Hall. "I credit this to the leadership of their captain and a group of dedicated girls who worked together as a team.

J.V.'s lack inside power

This year's J.V. Knights basketball season was not an outstanding success, but it wasn't a failure either. The major reason for their losing season was the lack of inside power. Most of these young guys will go on to play varsity next year, and with the experience gained from playing J.V. will become great ball players.

The qualifications for individual membership in the Sr. Beta Club are worthy character, good mentality, creditable achievement, and commendable attitude. Prospective members must be approved by the head of the local high school.

It is the goal of every school that its students go on into the world to become useful and giving members of their community and their country. North Central's student council helps to accomplish these goals by providing an environment through which representative students learn to share and express the ideas which represent all of North Central High School.

This past year the Student Council showed its concern for our less fortunate neighbors and friends by conducting a very successful canned food drive; the result of which made for a very Merry Christmas for a number of families. Also successful was the fund raising Christmas Angel program which has benefited North Central by allowing funds to be made available for materials that our teachers feel will provide a broad base education for all our students.

A desire for self-expression, discipline, team work, fun, and excitement. An area of chorus includes competition both as a group and individually. One of the major functions is sharing special times with you through song. Annual Staff "83"

This years 1983 "Shield" has a new look. We hope you like it because it's yours.

The staff put in many enjoyable hours trying to tell the story of each and every student. We worked on weekends and after school which wasn't too bad because the staff got along pretty well together.

Mrs. Tucker, our ever present advisor, was a big help to us when we were all out of ideas. She had the whole book to worry about while we only had our sections to consider.

The year flew by for us and when we saw how our new creation turned out, it gave us the fever to start again.

Staff, you worked hard and did a good job.

Thank you,
Editor, Glenda Cassady

Lisa Catoe, Rodney Hegler, Dwayne Davis, Glenda Cassady, and Daryl Tarte put their heads together in a team effort to work out a problem.

Gene Stevens and Jerry Smalls helped the Annual Staff with ad sales this year. They sold over five-hundred dollars worth of ads during the summer. Each planned to be on the Annual Staff but their schedules would not permit it.

Ann Taylor and Rodney Hegler share a kind word and a nice smile as they work very hard on the yearbook.

Want to buy one? . . . . . .

Fund raising at North Central is an ever present, never ending, all consuming activity. Students are asked to sell, donate, arrange programs, ask for contributions, conduct contests and devise enovative ways to raise money to support their particular cause. The Annual Staff is a part of this scene in a very big way. We depend on local merchants and patrons to buy advertising space in our book and on annual sales for our major source of income.

As the economy becomes tighter, merchants and individuals are understandable more careful with their money. We must look to other sources to meet our needs. This year, the Annual Staff introduced the first "Miss Shield Pageant". This event occurred too late to be included in this years annual but will receive ample coverage in the '84 Shield. We hope this will be the answer for us and will become a regular event in this school's calendar.

Hard at work to meet a deadline are Sandra Roberts, Denise Alexander, and Lisa Seegars.

With her hand on Daryl Tarte's head, Lisa Catoe appears to be practicing phrenology.

Distracted is the word for Mrs. Tucker as she assisted George and Tracy who were pressed to meet a deadline.

In their second year, the Knight Times staff once again made interesting news out of local and school happenings.

Much time was involved with reporters tracking down leads, interviewing people, organizing facts and writing stories. Having finished their job, the reporters turned their stories over to editors and typists who pains takingly proof-read, corrected errors and readied for final copy.

The staff tried an eight page paper this year, something never done before at North Central. Yet, with talented writers, hard work and ingenuity, the staff still managed to turn out six editions.

Editors Janet Fields and Denise Catoe are relaxed after successfully meeting another deadline.

Last minute instructions from Denise Catoe are given to Tony Parker and Daniel Young.

Is this crew working on a paper or telling jokes?

Getting the scoop from Mr. Hough, Amy Taylor staff reporter

The proof is in the reading. Mr. Blaskowitz, staff advisor, seems pleased with the good work of the staff. Marshall Alexander apparently agrees.

Going over the many angles of a story, Michelle Catoe, Nancy Evans, and Pat Rutledge can not seem to choose one idea.

Students excel in many areas

Junior class has spirit

This has been an active and spirited year for the Junior class. They have proven their spirit by winning the spirit stick three out of five times at pep rallies. Led by their mentor, Mr. Roberts and their comical cheerleader, Trent McLaughton, they added spice to many rallies.

Fund raising is always a big part of a Junior's year. This year, as always, many projects were conducted so that they would be able to give the Senior class a memorable prom.

Now, introducing the Junior Class Officers. President - Brian Owens, Vice President - George Taylor, Secretary - Regina Jones, and Treasurer - Beverly Johnson.

A big change for freshmen

When one becomes a freshman, he is stepping up a notch only to be battered back by a sophomore. But he survives his terror by keeping his equanimity. He gains most of his freedom by being able to choose his classes instead of them being chosen for him. He has the opportunity to learn under a whole new set of teachers. He also has a chance to have more friends by having second lunch instead of first lunch.

In spite of some advantages of being a freshman there are some disadvantages also. A freshman can not participate in as many clubs or organizations as sophomores. The freshman is required to take more classes which limits his time for social enjoyment or many activities.

Although the young freshman is under pressure, he will adventurely pull out of it. Because of his ability to withstand pressure and stress, he will survive.

The freshman leaders were Everett Johnson - President, Mark Koumas - Vice President, Angie Hammes - Secretary, and Tammy Childers - Treasurer.
